A fusion of the youthful energy of Armenia and the ancient traditions of its people and culture, the 53 performers from AGBU Children's Centers in Armenia will enthrall you with their talent, charm and passion.

This unique evening brings together the varied skills and devotion of some of the brightest and most talented performers from a country known for its rich taste for performance.

In Armenia, AGBU and the Holy See of Etchmiadzin joined forces over a decade ago to administer three Children's Centers in Yerevan. The Nork, Arapkir and Malatya Centers provide instruction in the fields of history, language, computer, art, music, dance, crafts and gymnastics. The Centers educate 3,500 students daily, complimenting the local Armenian public school system and providing exciting opportunities for the students to learn about their culture, their heritage and the world.

Established in 1906, AGBU (www.agbu.org) is the world's largest non-profit Armenian organization. Headquartered in New York City with a budget of $36 million, AGBU preserves and promotes the Armenian identity and heritage through educational, cultural, youth, and humanitarian programs annually serving some 400,000 Armenians in 37 countries.
